m. Energy:

Generator: The University has full power supply from the public utility services as well as two generators with complete back-up facility of more than 2000 KVA.

Usage of Solar Energy: Solar panels, installed at various places within the campus, are used to power solar water heaters. The entire hot water requirement in the hostels and mess is met through these heaters.

Conservation of Power: The Academic blocks and libraries are planned architecturally to get natural light during the daytime and are well illuminated. This has ensured that there is no wastage of power.

n. Water Supply:

The University has water supply from the Hyderabad Metro water supply department as well as a back-up of underground water resource through 10 bore wells and a sump to store 4,00,000 liters of water to be used at any time on the campus.

The bore wells are in working condition discharging sufficient water.

Reverse Osmosis (RO) Water Treatment: The underground water is treated in the RO plant to make it potable for drinking.

Sewerage Treatment Plant (STP): The sewerage is treated and used for irrigation purposes for the green vegetation on the campus. The University has a Sewerage Treatment Plant which has been upgraded to treat 950 KLD of waste water. This water is used for watering the plants on the campus.

o. Transport: To cater to increase in the number of students as well as faculty and staff, in addition to the buses outsourced, three additional buses of IFHE are deployed.

6. Biodiversity

The campus has a total area of 92 acres. About 70% of the area (65 acres) is devoted to biological diversity with 55% for flora and grass, 10% for fauna and 5% for human beings. They co-exist in a happy and symbiotic relationship. Infrastructure and buildings account for 20%; roads and green pathways constitute 5% and another 5% is for grounds and facilities (for sports and recreation).

7. Learning Resources

The University has a central library and two departmental libraries attached to the Faculty of Science & Technology and the Faculty of Law. The spacious central library, which is spread over three floors, is named as the Sri N J Yasaswy Memorial Library. It has a carpet area of 45000 sq. ft. and is centrally air conditioned. The library has a seating capacity of 700.

The library has a diverse collection of books, CD/DVDs, reports, and national/international periodicals related to all functional areas of management, economics, science & technology and law. All the library activities are computerized with the help of Libsuite, the integrated library management software. The library documents are classified according to the Dewey decimal classification system. An online catalogue is maintained. This helps the students, faculty and staff to trace books easily. All the documents are bar-coded and bar-coded identity cards are issued to the users (students, faculty & staff) for borrowing the documents.

The library also subscribes to several online databases such as Ebsco, Emerald, Science Direct, and Proquest etc., to enable the users to access these databases as well as the library catalogue (WebOPAC) through the campus intranet. Photocopying facilities are also available within the library premises.

Research related software like SPSS & SAS are made available to the scholars and faculty. Research related books, monographs, and dissertations/theses are housed in the reference section. The latest books and revised editions in the related fields are procured every month keeping in view future requirements.

The library staff is professionally qualified and experienced and maintains the library efficiently, catering to the needs of the users.

Upgradation of Infrastructure:

The University uses both formal and informal methods to get to know the kind of infrastructural facilities that it needs to add or upgrade. Some of the facilities are directly managed by the faculty and hence the campus head comes to know about the facility requirements. Students are also involved in managing facilities like the library, computer centers and cafeteria. Hence, they too form an important source of feedback.

Visits by the faculty/center head to other educational institutions are encouraged. These visits provide insights about the facilities and equipment that these institutions use. The Director also encourages manufacturers and dealers of equipment to demonstrate their products.

Monitoring Mechanism

The University also has a formal mechanism to get feedback from the faculty, staff and students on the infrastructure and facilities. Before the students graduate, detailed feedback is taken from all of them. This feedback is on computer facilities, library, cafeteria, their timings, etc. The head of academics also takes formal feedback from the faculty at the end of each semester about the facilities, equipment and hardware & software requirements.

New Technology Infrastructure

The University has Wi-Fi connectivity on the campus. Students have the option of using the internet anywhere on the campus. The IT lab is equipped with the latest software and hardware. The institute has 320 MBPS internet bandwidth for the use of students and faculty members. The internet facility has been provided to all the students for their academic and research work. Computers are provided to all the teaching staff in their rooms. Research related software such as SPSS, SAS, IBM Rational Rose, etc., is available.

Automation Process

The current status of the automation initiative at the University is as follows:

- i. Admissions process: Students have the facility to fill up the application online. Their identity cards for taking the written examination are also sent online. After the examination, their results are declared online and further communication is sent to them online.
- ii. Students' Feedback on faculty: The students have the facility to give their feedback on their respective faculty members online at the end of every semester.
- iii. Summer Internship Program (SIP): The faculty members have the facility to evaluate the students at various intervals during the SIP and can enter the marks for the students online.
- iv. Hosting Suggested Answers on the website: The question papers along with the suggested answers are uploaded on the site immediately after the examination is over. If a student has any doubts he/she can immediately get them cleared by the faculty member concerned.
- v. Alumni Activities: Activities like placement support, career enhancement support, alumni meetings, exchange of information, etc., are web enabled to ensure wider reach and faster processing.
- vi. Other activities online: The student circulars, office circulars, etc., are uploaded for student and faculty viewing.
- vii. Biometric System: Biometric system of attendance recording for faculty and staff has been implemented.
- viii. In the Pipeline: Facilities for the faculty members to chat online regularly and exchange views, and an online facility for internal evaluation marks, etc., are in the process of being set up.

Networking

Till recently, faculty members, the students and staff were using the network only for sharing resources like software and printers. In the last few months, the Academic Office, which keeps all the records and manages the MBA program, has created an Intranet to provide detailed and the latest information to the students and the faculty. The Intranet provides information on schedules of classes, examinations and events, syllabuses of courses, information about students and faculty members, etc. It is being used by the students to communicate with each other, run opinion polls, post articles and news about the campus, and create a market to buy and sell items. Some of the salient features of the Intranet are as follows:

Using the Intranet, students can choose elective courses online. If a course is not offered because only a few students were interested in it, the software does not allow students to choose that course. Similarly, the software does not allow students to choose courses for which they are not eligible.

IFHE uses the Student Information Management System (SIS) to enhance the learning experience of students using the latest educational technology. All academic activities including evaluation are done using this facility, which is supported by Wi-Fi and advanced IT labs.

The Intranet has a link to the library database. The students and faculty can check the availability of books in the library.

The University has various academic, cultural and social clubs. Each club has its own website. The clubs use the websites to announce the activities, events and competitions organized by them; to get nominations for competitions; and to announce the results of the competitions. After an event is over, students upload photographs of the event and put up a report about the event.

8. Faculties and Programs

8.1 Faculty of Management – IBS Hyderabad

IFHE, Hyderabad, offers high-quality programs in Management, Science & Technology and Law. The programs offered by IBS Hyderabad are BBA, MBA, Executive MBA (Part-Time) and PhD (Full-Time & Part-Time).

The BBA Program

The University launched the BBA program in the year 2010. In the sixth batch, i.e. the Class of 2015-18, there are 290 students.

BBA Enrollment
Class	Boys	Girls	Total
2013-16	95	46	141
2014-17	162	67	229
2015-18	183	107	290

The details of the program are available on www.ibshyderabad.org.

The MBA Program

The MBA Program equips the students with the skills, knowledge and strategic perspectives essential for leadership of business around the world. IBS Hyderabad has adopted the case-based learning method.

Management case studies form an integral part of the curriculum in leading B-Schools globally. Case studies describe the situation faced by practicing managers in a narrative form and also provide the necessary supporting information to involve students in the decision-making process. These case studies encourage students to think of the possible ways of handling such issues and help them learn the complexities of decision-making in business. The case studies also make them aware of the challenges that managers face every day at work. Almost all the courses in IBS Hyderabad are designed keeping in mind the advantages of case-based teaching. Each topic in a particular course is mapped with business cases. More than 300 different cases are studied, analyzed, and discussed by the students.

Summer Internship Program (SIP)

The Summer Internship Program (SIP) forms an important component of the MBA Program. It is an attempt to bridge the gap in the students' perception between academics and the corporate world. Under this program, students undertake a 12-week internship at any organization during the intervening period between close of Semester II and commencement of Semester III. It requires students to undergo the rigors of a professional environment, both in form and substance. SIP exposes the students to technical skills and helps them to acquire social skills by drawing them into contact with real professionals. The internship is a simulation of the real work environment. Students are guided by a faculty member from the IBS Hyderabad and from the company executive under whom the students undergo internship. Both will assess the performance of the student and grade the students.

The students underwent internship program in about 523 companies spread across 41 Sectors.

The University encourages students by awarding scholarships and Gold and Silver medals to meritorious students.

The Center for Management Development (CMD) is primarily involved in offering training to executives from industry and academia from various institutes and universities on contemporary topics in different areas. These programs are being offered as Management Development Programs (MDPs) and Faculty Development Programs (FDPs). MDPs are meant for practicing managers and FDPs for academicians. Both these programs are offered as open and in-company programs. Open programs are for participants from any organization while in-company programs are for specific organizations and are conducted on a special request from the respective organizations.

This year CMD conducted 19 MDPs, totaling to 745 participant days. Out of these 7 are for open audience, 7 for Indian Railways, 4 for Jawaharlal Nehru Institute of Banking and Finance (JNIBF) and 1 for In-company (Open Text Software). While Indian Railways continued to be our major in-company client, we have delivered programs to new clients, Jawaharlal Nehru Institute of Banking and Finance (JNIBF), and In-company (Open Text Software). We have offered a number of open programs to Banking sector this year. The response has been very good and we will continue to offer programs to banking executives. More faculty members are coming forward to offer MDPs. The topics include finance, project management, transportation management, CRM, soft skills and general management. The details of the programs are presented below:

18.1 Faculty of Management

WCo-curricular and extra-curricular activities are very much part of the day to day life at IFHE campus. With a large batch on the campus, the student community saw many activities during this year. In spite of their hectic academic schedule, students of the Faculty of Management are active outside the classrooms. Most of these activities are steered by the students under the guidance of a faculty member. Events across all areas of management as well as those related to sports, socio-cultural events and the arts are organized throughout the year.

At IBS Hyderabad, there are clubs / cells / committees in almost every functional area of management. Students with a focus on marketing and strategy have at least two clubs that may interest them. While ADMire is a club for students interested in advertising and branding, Maverick is more focused on selling and strategizing. Both Maverick and ADMire have serviced clients outside the campus this year. This is proof of what our students are capable of. Students who are interested in the Finance domain also have a choice of clubs to be part of. Money Matters is a club with its focus on money and banking, while FinStreet is a club focused on the financial markets. VriddhiResearch, a division of FinStreet, is a completely student-run cell whose focus is entirely on learning stock market operations and trading. EcoBizz is a club which focuses on public policy, the economy and the business environment. Students who are interested in HR have a club called Convergence, while Kaizen is a club which caters to the interests of the students in the Operations area. The DOT club organizes events and activities related to technology in general and IT in particular.

There are several clubs whose activities go beyond the functional areas of business. Speak-Up is a club that organizes debates and public speaking competitions. Aaina is a club which encourages students to reflect on issues while using their talents in creative writing and art. Gray Matters is the official Quiz club of IBS Hyderabad. Members of Gray Matters compete and participate in general and business quiz competitions inside and outside the campus. Xpressionz is the name of the official theater society of IBS Hyderabad. Members of Xpressionz have enacted plays and have won competitions outside the campus. Nazaria is the popular photography club of the institution. It extended its services this year to organizations outside the university.

Infinity Studios is a student club with a focus on movie appreciation and making. It not only presents critically acclaimed movies on a weekly basis but also conducts film festivals and other programs which are based on movie themes. Infinity's film making competition has now become a popular feature of the college's annual calendar. Samavesh, the official cultural club of IBS Hyderabad, is one of the most active student bodies. It takes the lead in celebrating all festivals and national days and it truly celebrates the multi-cultural spirit of the campus. Samavesh indeed plays a big role in making students from all parts of the country feel at home. It has a tie-up with the Society for Promotion of Indian Classical Music and Culture among Youth (SPIC-MACAY). The students also have a popular rock-band, Diatribe.

There are three clubs in the arena of adventure and sports. VAPS is dedicated to the promotion of all sports and games. The VAPS team organizes several sports events round the year. It also organizes the Mrinal Anand Trophy Cricket tournament, an intra-IBS cricket tournament involving student, staff and alumni teams. IBS Blues focuses on swimming and water sports, and Prakriti organizes nature-based events like trekking, bird watching, rock climbing and rappelling.

The Prayaas Club plays the interesting role of coordinating the participation of IBS Hyderabad students in various external events and fests across the country. Newswire focuses on the news media and plays the dual role of keeping the campus informed about important events outside, especially in the field of business and finance, as well as keeping the outside world informed of the happenings in IBS Hyderabad. Stu-z is the student-run intranet service, which is also used to stream audio (Campus Vani) and video to the entire campus.

IBS Hyderabad students, both post-graduate and undergraduate, have also been active in the field of charity and social action. Blood-donation camps, free dental check-ups and other such activities have been organized in the last one year. Many students are active members of the Aashayein Foundation, which works among impoverished children. Several clubs support the work of Aashayein Foundation. Sankalp is a club that promotes social and business leadership and works toward nation building. Outreach programs to the nearby villages were conducted by Sankalp on the eve of Christmas. On Republic Day a program was conducted for HCC, a home for AIDS affected children in Hyderabad. Sankalp is also known for its flagship event, Megistanos, the Best Manager competition, which it organizes during the institution's annual inter B-school fest.

In addition to these clubs, there are two cells which are run by the students, viz, the Alumni Relations Cell, discussed in the previous section and Maçon, the entrepreneurship cell of IBS Hyderabad. Among the many activities Maçon undertakes, the most important is the Incube program, which aims at encouraging, mentoring and handholding students with basic business ideas in order to help them develop business plans which can attract funding and market support. Last year was the sixth year of the Incube program. The Centre for Entrepreneurship Development of the University and Maçon jointly celebrate a week in November or December as the entrepreneurship week on campus. This year it was celebrated during December 18, 21-22, 2015. Many dignitaries including venture capitalists and entrepreneurs visited the campus on the initiative of CED and Maçon. The start-up showcasing this year involved 37 Business plans. While earlier Maçon was part of the National Entrepreneurship Network, now Maçon itself has emerged as a network of entrepreneurship cell with units in institutes like IBS Pune and NIT Trichy.

The Student Activities Department, with the support of all the clubs, cells and committees organizes five major events during the year. At the beginning of the academic year, the new batch of students is formally welcomed by the senior batch through a festive program christened 'Freshers'. Similarly, towards the end of the year, the students organize a farewell for the outgoing batch. The annual national sports meet for Business Schools in India, Aaveg, is organized in November-December period every year. The biggest event of the year though, is the national inter-business school management and cultural festival, Trishna, which is organized every year in the third week of January.

Aaveg 6.0, the sports meet, was successfully held during December 11-13, 2015. Over 400 participants from across the country competed for glory in ten different events viz, Badminton, Basket Ball, Counter Strike, Football, Squash, Swimming, Table Tennis, Tennis, Throwball and Volleyball. OUR BUREAU Offering the mantra for success in life to students, NASSCOM chairman Dr. D.V.R. Mohan Reddy said, "Dream big, be paranoid about success, be a stick to your values." He was delivering the commencement address of The ICFAI Foundation for Higher Education (IFEH) at Shri Lakshmi Veda.

Tracing his 40-year entrepreneurial journey of building a billion-dollar company with business in 31 countries, employing 12,000 people, Dr. Reddy explained the five big lessons he learnt during his successful journey.

"Dream big, look for the right timing, be persistent, raise external funds, be ambitious and be paranoid about success," he said as the first lesson for an entrepreneur.

He pointed the importance of a sound business model and how to build an institution around. Sustainability, predictability, risk-taking and profitability (SDP), the highlight of the investor's brilliance as one of the elements of success of Culture where he is the executive chairman. 'No Plan to Extend Deadline for Banks to Clean Up Balance Sheets'

ENS Economic Bureau

Hyderabad: The Reserve Bank of India on Friday said it has no plans to revisit the March, 2017 deadline to clean up the public sector banks' balance sheets.

"I think we have made it quite clear that we expect that the banks should take proactive and conservative approach so that their balance sheets are cleaned up by 2017. And it is beginning of the cycle," said S S Mundra, Deputy Governor, Reserve Bank.

Speaking to media on the sidelines of an event here, Mundra said, "December was the first quarter. And from the few results which have come,

Private sector banks have 'apparently' performed relatively better than their public sector counterparts after the global financial crisis you might have seen that banks have started taking those steps. So there is no reason or trigger to really have any revisit on those things."

The restructured and bad assets combined together have gone over 13 per cent. On non-performing assets, Mundra said the private sector banks have 'apparently' performed relatively better than their public sector counterparts after the global financial crisis. On lending to startups, he said they may fall under either manufacturing or service sectors, and that they need equity push in early stage. "However, banks are designed more to offer debt component at a later stage," he said.

ICFAI Business School (IBS) hosted the first Banking Research Conference in collaboration with the Global Institute of Politics and Economics where S.S. Mundra, Deputy Governor of Reserve Bank of India called upon the researchers to explore research issues in the areas of Agri-credit, credit to MSMEs and corporate leverage. He said the RBI was also engaged in research areas such as asset quality, capital adequacy, risk management and other related areas of banking. Emphasising the need for policy-oriented research, Mr. Mundra called for analysing how formal finance has impacted on productivity in agriculture and priority sector.

The MSMEs that account for 45 per cent of GDP and 40 per cent of exports need to be studied in terms of effectiveness of formal credit. Under the new priority sector lending, a target of 7.5 per cent of net bank credit has been stipulated for banks to support the government's new initiative of MUDRA bank for developing and refinancing micro-enterprises and micro-finance units, he said.

Prof. Mahender Reddy, the Vice-Chancellor of IPHE University emphasised the key role of the banking sector to achieve India's growth potential. He observed that the Indian banking sector was faced with several challenges like the mushrooming of PSAs and the ineptness of Indian banks in the rapid and effective transmission of monetary policy.

Around forty research papers were presented at the conference by the delegates from leading institutions such as Gokhale Institute, NIBM, Pune, and other institutions.

Professionals from various banks and research scholars from various research centres participated in the conference.

Hyderabad/Interview

The ICFAI Foundation for Higher Education and Parampara Family Business Institute, Bengaluru, have come together for academic collaboration to do research on family business.

While ICFAI is a deemed university, the Parampara Institute is a GMR Social Initiative focusing on family business.

GDP contribution

The focus on family business and building case studies has assumed importance in the backdrop of more than 75 per cent of the country's GDP being contributed by family businesses, according to Mahender Reddy, Vice-Chancellor of ICFAI.

While ICFAI has charted plans to create a centre of excellence in family business, the GMR group institute has been working on creating case studies on family business so that the lessons from such enterprises could be passed on to others and best practices could then be adopted.

Prasad Kumar, member of the Group Holding Board of GMR Group, told Business Line, "Research in family business has great relevance to the country and building case studies and sharing success stories will be useful for new generation companies. Some of the top global universities have centres of excellence for family business."

Global tie-ups

Parampara has teamed up with some of the top global institutions that work on research on family business. They include Business Family Foundation in Toronto, a Boston, US-based entity and several other leading B-Schools including Harvard, Kellogg's, London Business School and Insead.

Of Britishers who worked for India

Suresh Krishnamoorthy

HYDERABAD: "This is not a book about the British colonialism, but a narrative of those who lived here and worked for India. It is about their contribution to our country"

This was how an academic and CEO of the GMR Varalakshmi Foundation, V Raghunathan and an IT professional, who gave up her job yielding to her passion of writing, Veena Prasad, described 'Beyond the Call of Duty', a 224-page book published by HarperCollins Publishers India that was released here on Friday.

It speaks of a dozen people who came to India, lived here and did their bit to a nation that was colonised.

Director-Research at the LV Prasad Eye Research Institute, D. Balasubramanian spoke about the characters in the book - W.H. Steeman who chased thugs in his spare time, fighting the 'Thugee system' and Ronald Ross who hunted the Anopheles mosquito and demystified malaria.

The book chronicles the work of others, including Mount Stuart Elphinstone, the educationist Governor of Bombay who is considered the founding father of modern Indian education, Arthur Thomas Cotton the man who 'damned' India, William Jones's tribute to Indology and who laid the foundation of the Asiatic Society and the occasional botanist Dr. Archibald Campbell on 'Bringing tea to Darjeeling'.

There were chapters on the multi-faceted genius James Prinsep and his 'Extending Indian History', R.M. Stephenson and John Chapman - the men who shrunk India by getting it on track, Alexander Cunningham and brothers who proved the point with a family enterprise of excellence and the Indian Briton Mark Tully, a journalist par excellence.

The authors took questions as to what had made them choose the subjects they did.

Among the more interesting, the curious among the audience was Amani Gudipati, a student of Class VII of Oakridge International School.

She walked up to Ms. Veena Prasad and thanked her profusely for the education of the evening.

When asked, little Amani said, "We were taught in school that the Britishers ruled India. Now I have become more open-minded and learning a different facet, being told about Britishers who lived here and actually worked for the progress of the country!"

Icfai University aims to step up focus on research programmes

Offers incentives of ₹1 lakh to publish research papers in leading journals

GNANASOMAN

The ICFAI Foundation for Higher Education (IFHE), a deemed university, will be diversifying its management research programmes into emerging areas such as analytics and human resource related aspects.

"We have about 100 PhD scholars, including 25 who have been awarded their doctorates. We want to double this in a phased manner over the next five years," Mahender Reddy, Vice-Chancellor of IFHE, told BusinessLine during an interview here.

Efforts are also on to diversify the research areas into industry relevant issues in analytics, human resource, finance, marketing and operations, among others.

Referring to the need for undertaking research PhD programmes in management, Reddy said there was acute shortage of PhDs in management to take up teaching in the 5,000-odd business schools. This is not only impacting the quality of research in expanding frontiers of scholarship in management, but also adversely impacting quality of teaching," he said.

Those who have completed PhD from Icfai are now working as faculties in leading business schools including Indian Institutes of Management (IIMs), he added.

Incentives

To promote research, the university is providing financial incentives of up to ₹1 lakh for faculty who publish their research papers in international and national, peer reviewed journals. "We also en-

OUR BUREAU

Hyderabad: "We cannot control or create motivation in classrooms, but we do have tremendous influence over it," said Prof. Teresa Balsler, Fulbright Distinguished Chair, Faculty of Science and Engineering, Curtin University, Australia. She was delivering a lecture on "Motivation in the Modern Classroom" at the ICFAI University campus in Hyderabad.

Addressing the gathering, Prof. Balsler said that as a Fulbright scholar she has learnt a lot about education in her host countries, and everywhere she found that the teachers, especially in the field of higher education, found it a challenge to bring in excitement and motivation into their classrooms. "While the teachers expect students to attend classes, study, ask questions, participate and pay attention in the class, students, though highly motivated to learn, do not seem to be convinced that the classroom is the best place to learn," she said.

Speaking about the existing education system, Prof. Balsler said that it was oriented towards the industrial age and is not aligned to the needs of the current era. "It is necessary to create learning environments that engage students and provide them opportunities to learn. To improve motivation, attention has to be paid to people and delivery method, in addition to content," she added.

No plan to extend deadline for banks to clean up balance sheets: SS Mundra

Inconsistent data worries top bank

DO CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, JAN. 29

Casting doubts over various finance and economic statistics issued by the government, Reserve Bank of India deputy governor S.S. Mundra on Friday said central bankers were faced with difficulty in formulating appropriate policy in absence of consistent and coherent data.

"Very often, even within RBI also, we have to grapple with inconsistent, incoherent and incomplete data sets which severely undermine policy formulation. There are also problems around data design and data architecture like varied definitions, different reporting dates, etc," Dr Mundra said in his address to research delegates at ICFAI here.

Dr Mundra's comments on reliability of data come a day after RBI governor Raghuram Rajan suggested a rethink at the methodology to calculate GDP figures, though they were speaking in two different contexts.

"There are problems with the way we count GDP which is why we need to be careful sometimes just talking about growth," Dr Rajan told the students of a Delhi-based institute on Thursday.

While these comments may puncture the claims of the government about the country being fastest growing major economy in the world, they will enhance the already strong credibility that RBI enjoys among the global investor community.

Going against the trend of considering financial inclusion as easy to achieve task, the RBI deputy governor said, "While everyone agrees that the segment has immense potential, it is certainly not a low hanging fruit."

Clean up balance sheet by March 2017, RBI tells banks

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

HYDERABAD: Reserve Bank of India (RBI) is not considering extending the March 2017 deadline it has set for banks to clean up their balance sheets, Deputy Governor S.S. Mundra said here on Friday. "We have made it quite clear that banks must take proactive steps" with regard to their NPA, he told preservers after inaugurating a Banking Research Conference organised by ICFAI Foundation for Higher Education with Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics. The cleanup process had begun in the quarter-ended December, he said, adding there is "no trigger to revise the deadline." On the SARBESI Act, which permits banks to auction the properties when borrowers default on repayment, he said the legal system made it possible for large borrowers to stall the recovery. Small borrowers ended up being "dented with more severity." But once Bankruptcy Code comes into force, the situation was expected to change. At the conference, Mr. Mundra said credit to agriculture and MSMEs besides private sector leverage were "broad and basic issues" that remained under-researched. Corporate sector leverage, he said, had become an issue of great concern for the banking system. Several corporate houses began to increase their market share and expand capacity without any regard to domestic and global demand situations. Some fall in the category of "Pseudo borrowers. Given the concentration of debt, he called for research on assessing risk associated with borrowing through multi-layered structures holding companies and special purpose vehicles. Since a number of borrowers had borrowed for infrastructure projects that got stalled due to external factors, researchers could do a thorough analysis of a few such projects, he said.

Using data from the National Stock Exchange of India, we examine the Stealth Trading Hypothesis, which proposes that Cumulative Price Changes (CPCs) are concentrated in particular trade sizes due to the strategic trading of informed traders. We find that depending on market conditions, 60% to 80% of the CPC is concentrated in small trade sizes, with almost all the remaining price changes concentrated in medium trade sizes. These results support the Stealth Trading Hypothesis.

The paper makes an attempt to identify the periods of high illiquidity spiral and loss spiral fitting into the Markov switching regimes model with Constant Transition Probability (CTP) and Time-Varying Transition Probability (TVTP) models in the US equity market. We have identified two different states of the illiquidity spiral and loss spiral in the data associated with the said variables under the CPT and TVTP. The results suggest that the TVTP model is preferred to the CTP model in identifying the illiquidity spiral and loss spiral regime switching. In particular, the probability of remaining in the high illiquidity spiral and high loss spiral regimes increases with a decrease in S&P 500 return.

The paper examines the mean reversion property of 46 agricultural commodities in India covering the period 2000-2013. Two batteries of time series tests have been used for the purpose. One battery of tests is associated with testing the null hypothesis of unit root whereas the second battery of tests is associated with testing the null hypothesis of stationarity. Robust evidence of stationarity is found for Betelnut/Arccanut, Black Pepper, Cardamom, Cumin, Garlic, Ginger (Fresh), Guava, Poultry chicken, and Turmeric. The results indicate that any policy to influence the prices of these commodities will not have a permanent impact as they have a tendency to revert to the mean. The article concludes with a recommendation to the policymakers / government to review the commodity futures ban for these commodities.

This study re-examines the long-run validity of the monetary approach to exchange rate determination for India – in particular, the long-run association of the bilateral nominal exchange rate of the Indian rupee vis-à-vis the USD, Pound-Sterling, Yen, and Euro against the corresponding monetary fundamentals. Our results suggest that the monetary model is a valid theory of the long-run equilibrium condition for the rupee-dollar, rupee-pound, rupee-yen, and rupee-euro exchange rates.

Instead of analyzing the causality between two time series (unconditional analysis), as is usually done, the present study deals with the nexus between oil prices and Russia's real exchange rate conditional on potential control variables at well-specified horizons and on a frequency by frequency basis. This research accounts also for possible transient linkages and signal discontinuities. A major finding of this paper is deeply suggestive of a sharp causality running from oil price to real exchange rate in lower frequencies. It is suggested that Russia should tackle the turbulence triggered by oil prices better and continue to reduce its energy dependency by taking drastic and proactive measures.

A Chow test indicates the presence of a structural break. Both symmetric and asymmetric GARCH models suggest that the volatility of NSE returns is persistent and asymmetric and has increased as a result of the crisis.

In this study, we analyze the Granger-Causality in frequency domain between stock prices and economic growth in India to identify the direction of the causality at different frequencies. For this purpose, in the first step, different seasonal and structural breaks unit root tests are used. In the second step, we use a conditional VAR model as the benchmark and we focus on the conditional and non-conditional frequency domain causality tests. Our study shows that stock prices are a leading indicator of growth in industrial production in India. In this case, to adjust the industrial production in the long term, the Indian economic policies should be focused with on the stock market environment.

This study examines the temporal properties of the real price series of 11 natural resources covering the period 1870-1990 utilizing a recently developed unit root test proposed by Narayan and Poop and a stationarity test developed by Carrion-i-Silvestre and Sansó. While the results from the Carrion-i-Silvestre and Sansó proposed test provide evidence to reject the null hypothesis of stationarity for aluminum, iron, tin, and zinc, indicating that these series are I(1), the results obtained from the Narayan and Poop unit root test provide significant evidence of stationarity for aluminum, copper, lead, silver, gas, and zinc, indicating that only these variables are I(0).

The nexus between stock returns and inflation is assessed for Pakistan using the methodology of frequency based causality and continuous wavelet transform over a long sample period 1961:M07–2012:M02. The preliminary investigation using frequency-based causality suggests an interdependence between stock returns and inflation. Our deeper investigation using the tools of wavelet coherency and wavelet phase angle in the continuous wavelet transform framework, however, explores the dependency between stock returns and inflation over certain time periods, especially for lower time scales. The results suggest that the inflation measures indicate that inflation does not erode the value of stocks in Pakistan and the stocks could be used as a hedge against inflation at least in the long run.

For this purpose, we use Becker et al.'s (2006) flexible Fourier stationarity test as a benchmark and the recent advanced Fourier ADF unit root test for 90 countries over the period 1980–2011. The results of the first test document the stationarity of the renewable-to-total electricity consumption ratio for 65 countries from different geographic areas, namely Africa, America, the Asia-Pacific, and Europe. However, when validated, the Fourier ADF test shows that the null hypothesis of unit root is rejected in all the cases, except for the United Kingdom. The fact that stationarity in the share of renewable-to-total electricity consumption is documented by the new proposed, more powerful tests, does not necessarily mean that the renewable energy policies are ineffective, as the previous literature states. However, our findings are important from the modeling perspective, as the empirical studies on renewable energy can produce reliable results and use appropriate techniques for modeling and forecasting only if the stationarity or non-stationarity is correctly documented.

The purpose of this paper is to assess the level of co-movements, contagion, and rolling correlation between the stock markets of the PIIGS and those of the UK and Germany. We thus resort to a novel time-frequency approach, namely, the continuous wavelet transform, and analyze the co-movements of the stock index returns at different frequency-scales. The wavelet analysis results show that, in the short run, the correlation level is high only during financial distress episodes, while in the long run, the co-movements are present for the entire analyzed horizon. In addition, at low-frequency levels, the PIIGS stock markets are more correlated with Germany than with the UK. An opposite result is obtained at high-frequency decomposition levels. The study shows that the stock markets' correlation does not increase after all crisis events and depends on the wavelet decomposition levels.

The study investigates the information content in equity index options trading using the S&P CNX Nifty Index options traded on the National Stock Exchange (NSE), India. We account for different market conditions (for example, Uptrend, Downtrend, Recovery phases) and option's moneyneess, which potentially can affect the venue preference of the trader and bring anomalies in the price discovery process. We use the linear regression method to investigate the contemporaneous relationship and the bi-variate Vector Auto-Regression (VAR) model to study the information content of the markets. The contemporaneous relationship between trading activity and spot returns is found to be significant in the cases of the two most liquid contracts based on moneyneess, that is, the at-the-money and out-of-the-money options. However, we find a change in the magnitude and direction of this relationship when the market cycle is taken into consideration. VAR results suggest that at-the-money options are the favorite contracts of informed traders in the Indian market consistently across periods of study. However, we find the spot market is leading significantly for the in-the-money and out-of-the-money classes and across market trends

We analyze the stock price effects of bulk trade in India over the period 2004–2012. Using an event study model, we note the significant impact of bulk trades on the share prices with cumulative returns being very high around the trades for both BSE and NSE. Buy trade has significant positive cumulative abnormal returns, indicating that buy trades on an average increase firm value. Next, we regress cumulative average abnormal returns of different windows on different independent variables. The effect of all the variables considered is found to be higher in the case of buy trades than that of the sell trades.

We study the effect of outside block-ownership On the firm-specific crash risk of Indian firms in the future. Major and dedicated block-owners play a significant role in aggravating the firm's susceptibility to crash-risk. Within a novel regulatory setup in India, where borrowing firms are entitled to a bank nominated board-member, we find an ancillary influence of the bank nominee's presence in dissipating block-owners' influence on firm-level crash-risk. These results support the monitoring hypothesis in alleviating future firm-level crash-risk.

We show that the higher costs associated with an increase in the capital ratio may be recovered by increasing lending spreads. A basis point increase in capital ratio can be recovered by increasing the lending spread by 31 basis points and this could go up to 100 basis points for a six-percentage point increase. We also provide the estimations for the scenarios of changes in risk-weighted assets, return on equity, and the cost of debt.

The results may encourage managers of ITES companies to consider CSR as an investment rather than an expense.

The present study tests an alternative and indigenous theory of personality and explores its links with various aspects of organizational behavior. According to Indian philosophy, Trigunas (three trait-like components), namely, Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas, are present in everyone, but it is the relative predominance of one of the three gunas that determines the personality of the individual. Sattva guna is reflected in equanimity, serenity, and poise. Rajas is expressed in high action orientation, ambition, lust, and so on. Tamas is the trait that is manifested in sloth and laziness. The predictive relationship of these three gunas with organizational citizenship behavior, job satisfaction, and job performance (task performance and overall performance) was measured using the method of multiple regression analysis. The results confirm that high Sattva guna strongly predicts organizational citizenship behavior and high performance but not job satisfaction.

We employed Interpretative Phenomenological Analysis (IPA) to gain insights into the causes of rising levels of stress in business schools and the coping strategies practiced, from the professors' perspective, based on their narratives of lived experiences. We conducted semi-structured interviews with 64 professors from 29 public and private business schools in India. Analysis of qualitative data resulted in the emergence of 11 themes; we make recommendations based on these themes for the business schools' management to assist the professors in alleviating role stress. The insights gathered from IPA help in understanding the tenacious causes of role stress in the management institutes and the day-to-day coping strategies followed to reduce them.

This study investigates the factors influencing the information technology outsourcing decisions of managers in the Indian banking sector. This paper aims to provide empirical evidence of the relationship between perceived service innovativeness, image-congruence, satisfaction, and behavioral outcomes at the customer level. It validates the role of perceived service innovativeness as a mechanism that facilitates development and transfer of customer's image-congruence toward a service firm. It also finds that the image-congruity dimensions fully mediate the relationship between perceived innovativeness and satisfaction. The resultant customer satisfaction leads to the development of behavioral outcomes. This study is a first attempt to find empirical support for the role of perceived service innovativeness to create the customer's image congruity with a service firm.

This study examines the role of individual and contextual factors in the development of career optimism, which leads to career decisiveness using the Motivational Systems Theory (MST). The study was conducted by adopting a longitudinal study design using responses from 254 management students in India. The results of structural equation modeling analyses suggest that the hypothesized model adequately fit the data. Career optimism mediated the relationship between each of the components of MST (goal, capability beliefs, context beliefs, and emotions) and career decisiveness, except goals. Career optimism partially mediated the relationship between goals and career decisiveness. Further, the results indicate that none of the demographic variables (age, gender, qualification, and academic background) have any effect on either career optimism or career decisiveness.

At the strategic level, Closed-Loop Supply Chain Configuration (CLSCC) attempts to address issues pertinent to the launch of a new product and its reconstruction. To study the CLSCC problem, the authors developed an integrated optimization model for the problem. The authors conducted a comprehensive set of computational experiments followed by a series of what-if analyses to compare profitability of the Forward Supply Chain Configuration (FSCC) with the CLSCC. The significant outcomes of the study suggest that: (i) performance of the firms base case integrated CLSCC model is significantly better than the current supply chain model; (ii) the sales-price ratio of new battery is negatively related to the maximum acquiring price of used batteries; (iii) the combination of sales price ratios of new and reconditioned batteries determines the total net profit for a given return rate.

The case study is about the dilemma faced by Dr. Jim Yong Kim (Kim), President of the World Bank Group, related to the International Finance Corporation's (IFC) funding of the Tata Mundra Project in India. The Mundra plant was one of the Ultra Mega Power Projects (UMPPs) conceived with the objective of providing cheap electricity to the power-starved states of India. Coastal Gujarat Power Limited (CGPL), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tata Power, implemented the project with funds from various organizations including a funding of US$450 million from IFC. IFC's 'Office of the Compliance Advisor/Ombudsman' (CAO) did an extensive investigation and found evidence which validated the main aspects of the Machimar Adhikar Sangharsh Sangathan's (MASS) complaint that the project had a severe impact on the environment, sea water, water level, soil, air, natural habitats, marine life, fish population, livelihood, and health and society as a whole. However, the IFC management rejected the findings and Kim faced the criticism that he was toeing the management line. On the other hand, if he did a U-turn and accepted the finding of the CAO, he would have to stop the sustainable financing of US$450 million to the Tata Mundra project, which was established with the objective of providing cheap and reliable electricity to millions of people of developing India.
2	Apple and Conflict Minerals: Ethical Sourcing for Sustainability Second prize in the Corporate Sustainability track in the oikos Case Writing Competition 2015.	The success of Apple Inc.'s products like the iPhone and the iPad made the company rely on manufacturers in Asia to produce its products at a lower cost. Since these manufacturers were not too particular about checking the origins of the minerals they used, Apple had to face accusations by activists that it was using conflict minerals in its products. Apple took various initiatives to tackle the challenge of conflict minerals after it started facing the heat from the activist groups in 2010. Despite all the efforts made by it, the company faced an uphill task. The questions before Apple were: What more could it do to ensure that all its products were free of conflict minerals? How could it ensure that the procurement of minerals through its supply chain did not profit armed groups in producer countries? How could it assure stakeholders that their products did not contain any primary commodities that were linked to the funding of conflicts? How could it ensure all these, while also seeing to it that the action taken by the company did not have an adverse effect on the livelihoods of people who worked in and around artisanal mines and their communities?
3	From Sweatshops to Sustainability: Wal-Mart's Journey in Bangladesh Runners up in the Corporate Sustainability Track of the oikos Case Writing Competition 2015.	Walmart, the largest company in the world by revenue as of 2014, operated on the philosophy of providing its consumers products at the lowest possible prices. To achieve this, it procured goods from various parts of the world. The clothes were mostly procured from Bangladesh. Walmart and other global retailers were attracted to Bangladesh due to the cheap labor and low production costs prevailing there. They usually outsourced their production to some of the factories in the country. At that time, they ensured that the producer and the factory complied with laws and had other facilities in place for workers pertaining to timings, leave, overtime, etc.
4	Perdue Farm – Differing Values in Different Generations First Runner up IBS-PFBI Awards for Best Case in Managing Family Business in the International Case Study Conference 2015 organized by IBS Hyderabad in collaboration with Parampara Family Business Institute, IBSAF, and Universiti Utara Malaysia.	The case describes three generations of owners of the Salisbury-based Perdue Farms, and how each generation handled the business in their own style. The case discusses how a homegrown poultry business developed into a world-renowned chicken processing company and highlights the modus operandi of their business. Under the first and second generations, the business earned a name for itself for its quality products; but the market driven focus of the third generation owner tarnished its reputation. Its business practices were alleged to be inhumane and a threat to the environment. The case also explores the issues the family business was facing under the third generation and what the future of such a business could be under the given conditions. Another aspect covered in the case is the effective way in which succession was done at Perdue Farms over three generations and the future transition of business ownership from the third to the fourth generation. The case describes the sustainability aspect of the family business of Perdue Farms.
5	The Rothschilds: Maintaining a 200-year-old legacy of Family Business: Second Runner up: IBS-PFBI Awards for Best Case in Managing Family Business in the International Case Study Conference 2015 organized by IBS Hyderabad in collaboration with Parampara Family Business Institute, IBSAF, and Universiti Utara Malaysia.	The case chronicles the 200-year-old legacy of the family business of the Rothschild family. Started by Mayer Amschel Rothschild in 1790 in Frankfurt, the banking business of the family ruled Europe for centuries (dominated financially). The 5 sons of Mayer, strategically placed in different financial centers of Europe, took advantage of international events, thus creating their initial wealth. The case focuses on the reasons for the success and failure of family business at different times. It explores the concepts of family values, succession planning, inheritance planning, growing entrepreneurs within the family, controlling ownership of business, and adapting to changing times.
6	Rahul Yadav: Housing.Com's Maverick Entrepreneur Winner in the USASB- Baylor Case Writing Competition, 2016.	This case discusses the dilemma faced by the Board and investors of the real estate online search portal, Housing.com, with regard to retaining the entrepreneur and co-founder of the company, Rahul Yadav, as the CEO of the company. Yadav was mired in several controversies. It all started with an e-mail he wrote on March 6, 2015, to Shailendra Singh, Managing Director of the venture capital firm, Sequoia India, accusing him of poaching employees from Housing.com. With the spat between Yadav and Singh becoming public, The Economic Times (ET), an Indian daily published by Bennett, Coleman & Co. Ltd. (BCCL), carried a report on March 12, 2015, stating that the investors at Housing.com were considering removing Yadav from the post of CEO as they were concerned that his behavior would jeopardize the future of Housing.com. Dismissing the claims made by ET, Yadav denied that he was being replaced. Yadav again courted trouble when he sent an internal e-mail to his employees on the day the report was published, alleging that the Times Group, which ran a competing real estate online portal MagicBricks.com, was maligning Housing.com in India. In response to this e-mail, on March 17, 2015, Locon Solutions Pvt Ltd., owner of Housing.com, received a legal notice from BCCL for defamation and a claim of US$ 16 million in damages. Even as Yadav remained embroiled in several controversies, he got into a spat with the board members of Housing.com. On April 30, 2015, Yadav sent his resignation letter in to the board. The letter only served to worsen his already adverse relationship with the board members and investors. However, despite Yadav's antics, investors and board members decided to retain him as the CEO of Housing.com. Yadav also stated that he would work in full harmony with the Board.

7	The Turnaround Plan of McDonald's: A Long Way to Go Second Prize in the 35 th John Molson MBA International Case Competition, John Molson School of Business, Concordia University, Canada.	The case discusses the turnaround plan of Steve Easterbrook, CEO of Mc Donald's Corporation. Easterbrook reorganized the business into four market segments which were different from the existing structure where the company operated through distinct geographic segments. In the new structure, the markets were organized based on the maturity of presence in the market and shared characteristics. Easterbrook planned to increase the franchisee ownership from the existing 81% to 90% by selling more than 3,200 company-owned restaurants to franchisees. At the same time, McDonald's would also continue to operate restaurants in large, established markets. Easterbrook also announced changes in the menu and ingredients, the launch of made-to-order burgers, and plans to serve the breakfast menu all day long. There were mixed reactions from analysts, observers, franchisees, and customers to the turnaround plan. With the turnaround plan being implemented in July 2015, it remained to be seen whether it would revive the sagging fortunes of the fast food giant.
8	Maggi Noodles in India: The Revival Challenge Winner in the Short Case Competition, the 35 th John Molson MBA International Case Competition, John Molson School of Business, Concordia University, Canada.	The case discusses Maggi, an instant noodle brand of Nestlé India Limited (Indian arm of Swiss multinational, Nestlé), in the wake of high lead content findings in Maggi products and the subsequent chain of events which snowballed into the largest food scare the nation had ever witnessed. Further, the case reveals how Nestlé India responded to the fiasco and how the competition tried to capture the instant noodles market share in a situation where Nestlé India Limited had to take Maggi off the retailers' shelves.
9	IKEA in Russia: Ethical Dilemmas Category Winner in the Ethics and Social Responsibility, The Case Centre Awards and Competitions 2016.	The case "IKEA in Russia – Ethical Dilemmas" describes the efforts and tribulations of international furniture retail giant, IKEA, while setting up and doing business in the emerging market of Russia. Later, the case talks about the way IKEA went about positioning its stores, in addition to the new business model it came up with considering the unique circumstances of Russia. Apart from that, the case primarily details IKEA's struggles with a corrupt bureaucracy in Russia and the way the system always went against its business plans. It also mentions the company's struggle to adhere to its own ethical standards, both in Russia and in other global markets.
10	Netflix: Leveraging Big Data to Predict Entertainment Hits Category Winner in the Information and Communication Systems Management, The Case Centre Awards and Competitions 2016.	This case is about the big data capabilities developed by Netflix, the largest player in the USA in video streaming services with a global streaming subscriber base of around 33 million. The case also discusses the concerns that experts had about Netflix's big data technologies infringing the privacy of its subscribers. Experts also raised concerns about the outages faced by Amazon Web Services, the vendor of cloud computing services to Netflix which had resulted in the latter's site being down three times. Industry observers were apprehensive that Netflix would constrain artistic creativity by employing big data to come up with predictable content merely on the basis of the past viewing patterns of their audiences.
11	Airbnb: A Disruptive Innovator Finalist in the AESE Case Writing Competition 2016.	The case is about a San Francisco-based home-sharing website, Airbnb, which served as a platform for people to rent out their underutilized spaces. The idea for Airbnb, or Airbed and breakfast, was born in 2007, when two friends Brian Chesky and Joe Gebbia decided to rent out extra space in their apartment for delegates attending conferences in San Francisco. They were joined by Nathan Blecharczyk. The underlying principle of Airbnb's business model was the sharing economy where the hosts and guests were provided with a platform to contact each other. Their Business witnessed a growth of 800% in 2010 and by 2012, Airbnb business was present in 30,000 cities across the world and was valued at US$ 10 billion in 2014. But the company was accused of violating the existing housing and tourism laws in several cities in US. Experts warned that it would not be long before Airbnb came under anti-monopoly regulations. With many complicated issues dogging it, the case discusses whether Airbnb would be able to sustain its growth.

We show that the quantum mechanical problem which admits classical Laguerre/Jacobi polynomials as solutions for the Schrödinger Equations, will also admit exceptional Laguerre/Jacobi polynomials as solutions having the same eigenvalues but with the ground state missing after a modification of the potential. Then, we claim that the existence of these exceptional polynomials leads to the presence of non-trivial supersymmetry.
2	R Sandhya, S Sree Ranjani, and A K Kapoor, "Shape Invariant potentials in higher dimensions", Annals of Physics, Vol. 359, (Aug 2015), pp 125-135.	In this paper, we investigate the shape invariance property of a potential in one dimension. We show that a simple ansatz allows us to reconstruct all the known shape invariant potentials in one dimension. This ansatz can be easily extended to arrive at a large class of new shape invariant potentials in arbitrary dimensions. A reformulation of the shape invariance property and possible generalizations are proposed. These may lead to an important extension of the shape invariance property to Hamiltonians that are related to standard potential problems via space time transformations, which are found useful in the path integral formulation of quantum mechanics.
3	S Sree Ranjani, R Sandhya, and A K Kapoor, "Shape invariant rational extensions and potentials related to exceptional polynomials", International Journal of Modern Physics A, Vol. 30, No. 24 (Aug 2015) pp 1-18	In this paper, we show that an attempt to construct shape invariant extensions of a known shape invariant potential leads to, apart from a shift by a constant, the well-known technique of isospectral shift deformation. Using this, we construct infinite sets of generalized potentials with X_m exceptional polynomials as solutions. The method is simple and transparent and is elucidated using the radial oscillator and the trigonometric Poschl–Teller potentials. For the case of the radial oscillator, in addition to the known rational extensions, we construct two infinite sets of rational extensions, which seem to be less studied. Explicit expressions of the generalized infinite set of potentials and the corresponding solutions are presented. For the trigonometric Poschl–Teller potential, our analysis points to the possibility of several rational extensions beyond those known in literature.
4	L Koteswara Rao, "Local quantized extreme patterns for content based natural and texture image retrieval", Human centric Computing and Information Sciences, Vol. 5, No. 1, (Dec 2015), pp 1-24	In this paper, the concepts of LQP and DLEP are integrated to propose the LQEP for image retrieval application. First, the directional quantized information is collected from the given image. Then, the directional extrema is collected from the quantized information. Finally, the RGB color histogram is integrated with the LQEP for a feature vector generation. The performance of the proposed method is tested by conducting three experiments on Corel-1K, Corel-5K, and MIT VisTex databases for natural and texture image retrieval. The performance is measured in terms of precision, recall, Average Retrieval Precision (ARP), and Average Retrieval Rate (ARR). The results after investigation show considerable improvements in terms of their evaluation measures as compared to the existing methods on respective databases.
