The Legal Aid Society of ICFAI Law School, IFHE, Hyderabad, organized a speed mentoring program on the role of National, State, and District Commissions in women's safety and welfare for women sarpanch, ward members, and ASHA workers. This event took place on January 10, 2026, at the Cheriyal Gram Panchayat meeting hall, Kandi Mandal, Sangareddy District.

Attendees included Smt. Chevella Reka, Sarpanch of Cheriyal village and Working President of the Telangana State Women Sarpanch Federation, as well as Smt. Athelli Sangeetha, Sarpanch of Kyasara village, along with other sarpanch from Yeddumailaram, Cherlagudam, and Bhanor. The ward members and ASHA workers also participated in the legal awareness program.

The program featured a speech that raised awareness about the National Commission for Women (NCW) and described its efforts to address injustices against women and protect their rights. The speech also highlighted digital tools, such as the Her Legal Guide app and SHe-Box, which provide legal assistance and safety to women. It concluded by encouraging women to understand their rights, emphasizing that "awareness is the first line of defense." The NCW helpline number for women's safety is 14490.

Additionally, a poster presentation by legal aid members provided an overview of the functioning of State and District Women Commissions, which are statutory bodies established to protect women's rights and address issues such as violence, discrimination, and harassment. These commissions handle complaints, offer counseling and legal support, and collaborate with law enforcement and authorities to facilitate redress. They monitor the implementation of women-related laws and welfare schemes, advise governments, and promote awareness to ensure gender equality and justice. The women's protection cell number is 9059693448, and the helpline number is 040-27852355.

A case presentation by legal aid members illustrated how officers deal with real-life problems, specifically focusing on a domestic violence case. The example involved a woman who approached the office to file a complaint about abuse from her husband and in-laws. The commission assisted her by referring her to a protection officer designated under the Domestic Violence Act, ensuring her safety through residence and protection orders. The case presentation also discussed the ways women can approach the commission when facing inhumane situations and highlighted the commission's suo motu actions.

Feedback from attendees indicated that they gained a clear understanding of the women's commission's functioning and its various activities aimed at protecting and promoting the welfare of women. The event was funded by IFHE Management to promote legal literacy in the state of Telangana. Under the guidance of Prof. Ravisekhara Raju, Director, and Prof. Pratap Reddy, Dean, ICFAI Law School, Hyderabad.

The program is organized by Dr. S. Kannan, Coordinator, Legal Aid Society, and Legal Aid Members of ICFAI Law School, Hyderabad.
